

Mother,
what about that big house
over there ?

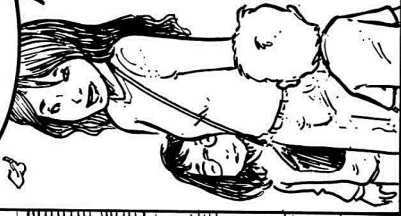

No,
it's the house of the Jacquemart,
one of the oldest buildings of Langeac.

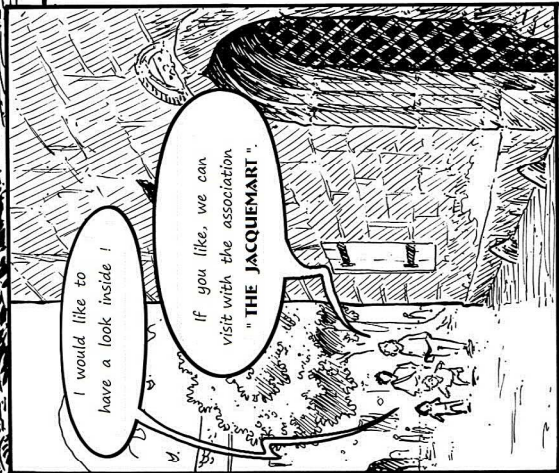

Today

it belongs to the community and is part of the heritage of the city.

I would like to have a look inside !

If you like, we can visit with the association
"THE JACQUEMART".

What is a Jacquemart ?

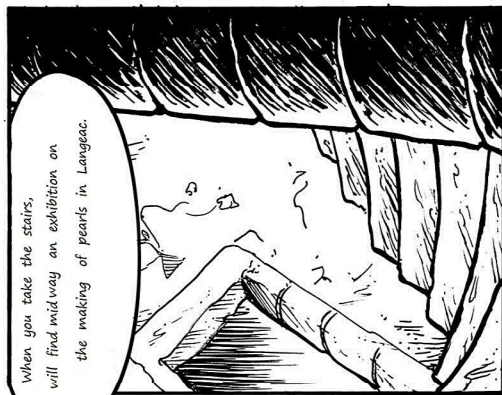

It is a mechanical figure,
who makes the bell toll,
it doesn't exist anymore,
but the house has kept
the name.

If you're interested, there's a lot to discover inside : on the ground floor there are different exhibitions every year.

When you take the stairs, you will find midway an exhibition on the making of pearls in Langeac.

On the first floor
you find the museum of embroidery...

... and one of the oldest paintings of Langeac.

On the next floor you'll find the room with historical ladies hats...

... as well as an exhibition
about geology and the volcanoes.

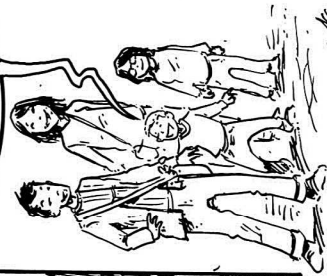

Wonderful,
I like stones !

And the last floor the exhibition of watercolours, ancient costumes, photography, etc...

Wow ! All these things?
Let's go there. I would like to see it all myself !

Go! 5/24
