VIVE LE FRANCE!

The Ocean Liner France • 1960

The S/S Norway was originally built as the S/S France, the last thoroughbred ocean liner dedicated exclusively to the transatlantic passenger service.

The final flagship of le Compagnie Générale Transatlantique (CGT), – the French Line – the France was built to replace the Liberté, the Ile de France, & the tragically lost Normandie. The order for construction at the St. Nazaire, France, shipyard of Chantiers de l'Atlantique was signed on July 25, 1956. In 1957, with an $80 million budget (some $450 million today), the first order for steel is placed.

On October 7, 1957, the first keel plate is laid. On May 11, 1960 at 4:15pm, the France is born, launched into the Loire River by godmother Madame Yvonne de Gaulle. An additional eighteen months of fitting out follows. After four years, three months & twenty-eight days, the France is complete. The ship is delivered formally on January 6, 1962.

At just over 1,035 feet (315.66 m), the ship is the longest ocean liner built to date. Eight steam turbines produce 170,000 HP, turning four screws to a top speed of more than 34 knots, making France the second fastest liner ever built. The twin "winged" funnels create a unique profile while keeping smoke away from the decks.

Carrying passengers in two classes, the France can cross the Atlantic in style in under five days & return without refueling. On February 3, 1962, France departs the home port of Le Havre to Southampton & on to New York for the first time in what will be an illustrious twelve-year career.

NCL Bar Special

S/S NORWAY • WELCOME HOME!

END OF AN ERA

The Ocean Liner S/S France 1960 - 1979
The last name in a long history of transatlantic ocean liners was "France." The so-called "Golden Age of Liners" included ships such as the Mauretania, Lusitania, Olympic, Titanic, Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, Ile de France, United States, Normandie, and many others. Even as the France was under construction, however, the advent of the Jet Age was drawing the era to a close.
Unlike liners steeped in the Edwardian tradition, the décor of the France did not incorporate wood. French designers used aluminum, plastic, linoleum & other lighter, safer materials to create a space-age atmosphere in the style of the sixties. Conversely, the tradition of culinary splendor at sea was not simply maintained, but embraced, earning France praise as "the finest French restaurant in the world."
The year the ship's keel was laid transatlantic service by jet exceeded travel by sea for the first time. France maintained a 90% occupancy rate, but had difficulty making a profit. In 1974, the French government withdrew financial support, choosing to focus instead on the new supersonic Concorde. Shortly thereafter, the oil crisis sent fuel prices from $35 to $95 per barrel, forcing the French Line to announce retirement after October.
A strike by the crew in September 1974, hastened the end and on October 9, 1974, the ship was laid up at "Le Quai de L'Oubli" - the Quay of the Forgotten.
Before being forced into retirement, the France had completed 377 crossings and 93 cruises, two of them around the world. Endeared to the hearts of millions, the ship would remain still for nearly five years but frequent visits from admirers assured the France would be far from forgotten.

NCL Bar Special
Football Helmet Ice Bucket - 6 beers for the price of five beers and a $5 refundable deposit for the Helmet Bucket

FRANCE TO NORWAY

The Cruise Ship S/S Norway • 1980
The S/S France was retired in October of 1974, the victim of the Jet Age & the oil crisis. In October 1977, a Saudi financier arranged to purchase the ship for $22 million. Plans to install over $15 million in antique French furniture & operate the ship as a sort of museum of French culture were thwarted when a dock could not be found.
In June 1979, the France was purchased by the then Norwegian Caribbean Line for conversion to the largest cruise ship in the world at the time. The $18 million sale price was the scrap value of the ship. NCL would invest an additional $120 million to convert the indoor ocean liner to an outdoor Caribbean cruise ship.
On August 18, 1979, renamed Norway, she left Le Havre under tow to Germany's Hapag-Lloyd shipyards. Ten months were required to add the so-called "carrier deck" with the larger of two new pools, expand the Sun Deck between the funnels, change the décor to suit the ship's new purpose & make several other modifications including the addition of the two tenders on the bow.
The new Norway arrived at her first port, Kristiansand, Norway, on May 2, 1980. From there, it was on to Oslo for a three-day reception including a visit from King Olaf V, Prince Harald V & Princess Sonia.
The maiden crossing of the Atlantic would begin in Oslo, call on Southampton, England, & put the ship into New York on May 16, 1980. She would depart May 17, Norwegian Independence Day, passing the QE2 on her way out to Miami.
On May 22, 1980, Norway arrived in Miami to begin seven-day cruises visiting St. Thomas, Nassau & an island in the Bahamas. The last true liner had found a new career in cruising.

THE MAKING OF NORWAY

The Cruise Ship S/S Norway • 1980 - 1990

Converting the ocean liner France into the cruise ship Norway was a feat of naval architecture. The original design called for interior spaces offering shelter from the harsh north Atlantic. The ship's purpose was transportation. For Caribbean cruising, sun & fun was the new aim.

In August of 1979 in Bremerhaven, Germany, a $120 million conversion under naval architect Tage Wandborg began. Norway would be ready in thirty-three weeks, six weeks ahead of schedule.

The black hull was painted navy blue; the red & black funnels, white with a two-tone blue accent. New York designer Angelo Donghia set about converting the interior, adding the spiral staircase in the Leeward Restaurant and creating a tropical décor.

The most noticeable changes were aft. Wandborg's "carrier deck" extended the new Pool Deck beyond the sides of the hull, adding a large outdoor space & pool. The original aft pool, one deck lower, would become the disco's dance floor. The terraces one deck up would be expanded back for the Great Outdoor Restaurant.

On the original Sun Deck atop, the space between the funnels was widened to the lifeboat davits, creating over two thousand square feet of sunning area. A recessed courtyard behind the first funnel made for the convenient addition of a second pool.

Below the waterline, five lateral thrusters added maneuverability, eliminating tugs. The outboard props were removed, the turbines remaining for stability. New props would help drop fuel consumption to a quarter of previous figures.

A second major refit in September 1990 would add two new decks, the Olympic jogging track & fitness center & change many interior spaces.

Statistics on the S/S France & S/S Norway
The specifications for the ship have changed throughout the years, most notably with the original conversion from France to Norway, then again in 1990 with the addition of the two uppermost decks. Here are some figures from the original France and the current Norway:

Specification	France	Norway
Length	315.66m	1,035 7' 5"
Beam* (width)	33.70m	110', 7"
Draft (depth to keel)	10.48m	34' 4 6/8"
Gross Tonnage (GRT)	66,348t	76,049t
Height† (from keel to top of funnels)	223'	223'
Screws (propellers)	4	2
Boilers	8	4
Horsepower	170,000	54,000
Service Speed	31-33 knots	18-21 knots
Max. Speed	34.13 knots	25 knots
Fuel Consumption†	750 tons/day	250 tons/day
Anchors	3 Fwd	3 Fwd / 1 Aft
Stabilizers* (length)	3.05m	10'
Passengers	2,044	2,565
Total Capacity	3,154	3,485

* measurement is unchanged for France or Norway
 Add approx. 2' after 1990 vertical expansion
 GRT - Gross Registered Tonnage is the total enclosed volume of a ship; 1 Volumetric Ton is 100 cubic feet or 2.8 cubic meters.
† Norway gets approximately 33 feet/gallon of fuel.

The ship features two pair of horizontal stabilizers to reduce roll. Six bilge keels also reduce roll. Pitching is minimized by the ship's length. This length was calculated by roughly tripling the average length of an Atlantic wave, meaning she is atop three crests at almost any given time, eliminating most of the "see-saw" motion.
